

If You're Feeling Overwhelmed

You're not alone—and you're not doing anything wrong.

WHAT IT LOOKS + FEELS LIKE

It can look like having a full list of things to do but not knowing where to start. Or sitting down to work and feeling scattered, jumping from one thing to the next without real progress.

Sometimes it's quieter—you're doing what needs to be done, but everything feels heavy, rushed, or just a little out of sync.

You may find yourself overthinking simple decisions, second-guessing what you've already chosen, or feeling like no matter how much you do, it's not quite enough.

This is what overwhelm often feels like.

WHAT IT FEELS LIKE WHEN YOU'RE NOT OVERWHELMED

- You can think clearly again.
- Decisions feel simpler.
- You know what matters—and what can wait.
- Instead of pushing, you move with intention.
- Instead of rushing, you respond.

*There's space.
There's steadiness.
There's clarity.*

HOW OVERWHELM SHOWS UP (BY STAGE)

1

SEARCHING

Everything feels unclear.
You may not know where to begin,
and even small decisions feel like too much.

2

EMERGING

You're moving, but it feels scattered.
You're doing a lot, yet still questioning yourself and carrying unnecessary pressure.

3

EXPANDING

You see multiple paths, but without clear alignment, I feel stuck choosing the right one.

WHAT'S ACTUALLY HAPPENING

Overwhelm isn't a sign that you're incapable.
It's often a sign that:

- your nervous system is overloaded
- your mind is trying to hold too many things at once
- and clarity hasn't had space to settle

When everything feels urgent, nothing feels clear.

RESET™: A SIMPLE WAY TO RETURN TO CLARITY

- R | Regulate — Pause. Breathe. Let your body settle first.
- E | Evaluate — Gently notice what's actually happening (not everything your mind is saying).
- S | Simplify — Come back to what truly matters right now.
- E | Execute — Take one clear, grounded step.
- T | Trust — Allow that to be enough for now.

*You don't have to do everything at once.
You don't have to push your way through.*

BEGIN WITHIN.
MOVE WITH EASE.

